

AdriaArray Workshop 2023

Dubrovnik, Croatia

3 – 5 April 2023

Dear Colleagues,

We would like to draw your attention to the next international workshop on AdriaArray that will be held in Dubrovnik, Croatia on 3 – 5 April 2023. The workshop will start early on Monday morning and end by lunch time on Wednesday. The workshop is partly supported by ORFEUS & EPOS within the EPOS SP project (Grant Agreement No 871121) and locally organised by the Department of Geophysics, Faculty of Science, University of Zagreb.

The meeting

The deployment of temporary AdriaArray stations started in June 2022. Since then, about 65% of the planned ca. 400 temporary stations have already been installed. The intention of the workshop is to discuss the status of AdriaArray and to define research topics within the AdriaArray initiative. Presentations will be possible as talks and posters.

Scientific scope

Plenary Sessions on Monday will focus on the status of AdriaArray, methodological as well as thematic questions and challenges, on the presentation of local networks in the AdriaArray region, on data access and data quality control. On Tuesday, break-out sessions on the following topics will be organized: data quality, seismicity, body wave tomography, surface wave and ambient noise studies, waveform tomography, receiver function studies, creating geodynamic test models, and engineering seismology. On Wednesday morning plenary discussions on the outcome of the break-out sessions and future activities will be held.

The Organization Committee encourages in particular local network/mobile pool operators to present and update on their networks/temporary deployments and early career scientists to attend the workshop.
